

Media Grid Powers Boston's Historic Faneuil Hall Marketplace Tour

Boston's historic Faneuil Hall Marketplace now has a cutting-edge 3D virtual tour, powered by the Media Grid.

The full-screen virtual tour lets users "visit" the buildings, shops, restaurants, and plazas that make up the Faneuil Hall Marketplace (also known as Quincy Market) using nothing more than a Web browser, broadband Internet connection, and a mouse. Users can select vantage points to view and explore the marketplace, which is famous for its restaurants, shops, and cultural attractions. Media Grid developers built the Web site and virtual tour. The Media Grid network hosts the interactive features.

The Grid Institute, which builds and maintains the global Media Grid network, has also been commissioned to construct and host virtual tours for other local attractions, including the Cheers restaurant and Sam's Café.

The Faneuil Hall Marketplace virtual tour can be accessed at www.faneuilhallmarketplace.com.
